Dakin's Work in Chicago

S. M. Hall, of Santa Rosa reports that he has shipped sixteen more of the canvases of the well known Sonoma Valley artist, Samuel T. Dakin, to the Newcomb-Macklin Company in Chicago, and the sketches are to be added to the list bought here by J. Suster some weeks ago. One of the works just sent east was 4x7 feet and was one of the finest pieces Mr. Dakin has ever painted.

It will be remembered that when Mr. Suster recently purchased the paintings which were displayed in the Elks' Hall, he secured thirty canvases, and the sixteen which he now gets are to make the Dakin collection one of the most complete ever sent from an artist on this coast.

Mr. Suster wrote that he proposes to take the four largest and best of the works he has and place them in the Chicago Art Institute, where they will be viewed by thousands of people. The most interesting feature about sending of these paintings to the east is that every one of the scenes is taken from Sonoma County nature.—Republican.

Suit Begun Against Sonoma

A suit has been commenced in the Superior Court by L. Quartoli, Chas. Dal Poggetto, J. Focchetti and N. J. Heggie, as administrators of the estate of Camille Aguilon, against the City of Sonoma and James Newman, claiming $3,629, the value of cut stone, lumber, etc. used in the construction of the new city hall in this city. The plaintiffs were bondsmen for J. T. McQuiddy, the first contractor for the building of the city hall. He was unable to complete his contract, but the material provided was used in the construction and the plaintiffs do not see why they should make such a big donation to the city. James C. Sims and James Spinetti are the attorneys for the plaintiffs. James Newman was the contractor who completed the building.

Superior Court Notes.

The final account was settled and distribution ordered of the estate of Albert Huntley.

The demurrer will be submitted on brief in ten days in the suit of M. M. Brazil against the Petaluma & Santa Rosa Railroad.

Comilio Torella was admitted to citizenship of the United States.

The suit of Ted Brockway vs. The Olmsted Company, and Ida Anna Gotzsch vs. Albert Henry Gotzsch, were continued to August 10.

The will of Lossen Ross was admitted to probate and Frank Ross and J. T. Campbell were named as executors without bonds.

Nellie E. Todd was named administratrix on the estate of Geo. W. Titus in a bond of $120.

Samuel W. Purrington and Margaret Ballard were named executors of the will of Joseph Purrington, without bonds.

A family allowance of $75 per month was allowed and an order of sale of personal property was made in the estate of G. Gagliardo.

The report of the commission on partition of the estate of John Lukus, was approved.

Albert James Hockey was admitted to citizenship of the United States.

In the suit of O. Fountain vs. Connecticut Mutual Fire Insurance Company, a stay of execution was granted to October 5.

Mrs. Elizabeth Violet Woodson was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from George Frank Woodson on the ground of habitual intemperance. The custody of the minor children was awarded to the plaintiff.

The Horticultural Commissioner of Monterey county reports that the fruit growers of that section have been very prompt this season in spraying for fruit pests and the fruit will be of very fine quality this year.

Squirrels Have Plague

Bubonic plague has broken out among the squirrels and rabbits of Contra Costa County and the animals are dying by the thousands there. Several deaths have recently resulted of persons who have gone hunting there and killed and eaten the animals that have been afflicted with the plague. It is also probable that the dread disease has broken out in the vicinity of Vallejo and Suisun Valley, and the people of that section are warned not to eat any rabbits or squirrels which they may kill in the course of hunting trips.

A little Portuguese boy at Concord recently died from bubonic plague, and it was determined that the lad had been bitten by a flea from an infected squirrel.

A resident of Myrtle street, in Oakland, died recently of the plague, contracted through having eaten some of the meat of a squirrel which he killed while hunting in the hills near Concord, and these show that all of the animals are affected with the plague. Several guinea pigs were inoculated with the virus taken from the squirrels and they promptly developed the disease and died.

Persons seeking game there are warned of the dangers which beset them.

A Faithful Friend

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since it was first introduced to the public in 1872, and have never found one instance where a cure was not speedily effected by its use. I have been a commercial traveler for eighteen years, and never start out on a trip without this, my faithful friend," says H. S. Nichols of Oakland, Ind. Ter. When a man has used a remedy for over thirty-five years he knows its value and is competent to speak of it. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

White vs. Brown Eggs

It is unnatural to incubate light and dark eggs together. Dark eggs are produced by different breeds from white ones and shell and membrane are of different texture. Place Leghorn and Cochins in the same incubator and the Leghorns will hatch from 12 to 24 hours ahead of the Cochins and the Cochins chicks will never be so good as when kept in a separate batch. Have often tried, for convenience only, to hatch Leghorn eggs with Brannas, Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes or Orpingtons and always the same result, whether under hens or with incubators—poor hatch from the browns and not up to the average with the whites. Have had better results from mixed eggs by giving the browns twelve hours start of the whites.

Diarrhoea Cured

"My father has for years been troubled with diarrhoea, and tried every means possible to effect a cure, without avail," writes John H. Zirkle of Philippi, W. Va. "He saw Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy advertised in the Philippi Republican and decided to try it. The result is one bottle cured him and he has not suffered with the disease for eighteen months. Before taking this remedy he was a constant sufferer. He is now sound and well, although sixty years old, can do as much work as a young man." Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Imperial valley has shipped, to the present time, over 1700 cars of cantaloupes, which it is feared will not bring one penny of income to the producers owing to the serious slump in the markets.

Our Best Fertilizer

Intelligent and successful tillers of the soil the world over, have always recognized the folly of allowing their land to become impoverished and have been constant users of good fertilizers.

It will therefore be of interest to the farmers generally to know that the cheapest and best fertilizer in the world to-day is nitrate of soda found in Chili, S. A. It has been repeatedly proved that the use of from $2 to $3 worth of nitrate to the acre has produced an increase in the crops of from 70 per cent to 300 per cent according to the soil and the crop raised.

The greater yield that comes from the use of nitrate of soda, far exceeds the expense and labor of putting it on the land.

Mr. James A. Landsborough, a former well known citizen of this valley, is an expert on the use of nitrate and will cheerfully and freely furnish any information desired on the subject. He has about twenty tons of the nitrate on hand now and more shipments are being made each week.

For full particulars as to prices, etc., call on or address James A. Landsborough, importer and wholesale and retail dealer in nitrate of soda, Shellville, Sonoma Co., Cal.

Catarrah Cannot be Cured

With LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrah is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrah Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrah Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrah. Send for testimonials free.

Banner shipment of fruit through Sacramento was on July 1, on which date sixty-one cars of fresh fruit was sent on their way to eastern markets. The largest prior record was forty-nine cars.

A. E. Sondag, the Tailor,

A. E. Sondag, the tailor, formerly of Sonoma, was in the valley this week taking orders for men's tailor-made suits. Mr. Sondag and family are temporarily located in Fruitvale, but the former expects to get permanent quarters for his tailoring establishment in the metropolis, in the near future. For many years he has enjoyed a liberal patronage from this valley and his work always gives satisfaction. Mr. Sondag will make regular weekly trips to the valley and solicits a share of his trade. Give him a trial order for a good suit and you'll be satisfied.

California Fruit Distributors forwarded forty-five cars of fresh fruit in one day. This is the largest green deciduous shipment by any one concern in the history of the State.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 7 1908

Admission Day Celebration

This celebration is for, and given by the entire Sonoma Valley and we ask all the people, in it from one to the other to put their shoulders to the wheel and help it along, for on the efforts of the people as a whole this celebration depends. Money is what we need. A grand barbecue is to be held by which we expect to feed thousands of people, a grand street parade led by a band of fifty pieces, and everything will be on the same order, so we can show the outside world that Sonoma Valley is "it" when it comes to a show down.

Marshall Albertson has been appointed collector for Sonoma City district. Mr. Akers will act in Shellville and Chas. J. Poppe will have charge of the upper end of the valley. These gentlemen will issue receipts for all money collected, and each and every amount will appear in the Sonoma papers each week, so one and all can see this roll of honor as it comes out. Now remember that every little helps, no matter how small, and when the 9th of September comes we feel sure that it will be the proudest and happiest day in the annals of Sonoma Valley.

Finance Committee,
J. K. BIGELOW, Chairman.

Celebration Meeting

A well attended and enthusiastic meeting of the various committees, having in hand the big celebration and dedication in Sonoma on Admission Day, was called to order by Mayor Breitenbach in the city hall last night. The main features of the event were thoroughly discussed and everything points to the biggest and most successful time ever given in our historic city. The comfort of the thousands of visitors who will be here on that day will be carefully looked after. The finance committee were instructed to get to work and report at the next meeting of the committees, which will be held in the city hall next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

The lot machine ordinance was amended by which the slot machines, large ones, are taxed $10 per quarter and small ones, $5 per quarter beginning Sept. 1. Trustees Bates and Wagoner voted "No" on this change, but it was carried by the votes of Trustees McDonald, Breitenbach and Quattrone. The merchants license ordinance was amended and passed by the same vote as above, as follows:

Merchants doing a business $1,500 per month and over must pay a license of $12.50 per quarter; from $800 to $1,500 to pay $7.50 per quarter; from $300 to $800 to pay $4.50 per quarter; under $300 to pay $2.50 per quarter. These are the four classes in order. The ordinance taxing undertakers, teamsters and newspapermen was left for future consideration. Adjourned until the next regular meeting.

STABBING AFFAIR

A cowardly assault was made a little Monday night upon the person of Giacomo Rigoni, with the victim receiving three ugly knife cuts, all of which are so serious either may cause death. The victim was cut under the ribs, which the doctors declare has cut the gall, one cut on the breast, and another on the back nearly opposite the wound in front, both of these thrusts entered the cavity, and are each serious enough to cause death. The wounded man escaped and ran into the Garibaldi bar room. Officer Ryan was immediately notified and Dr. Leix called to attend to the man's injuries. Rigoni informed the officer that his assailant was Louis Leo, a man who came up from San Francisco as a refugee at the time of the fire of April 18th, 1906, and who has remained ever since. The motive of the assault is said to have grown out of the arrest and fining of Leo, who was accused of throwing rocks at the home of Rigoni about two weeks ago.

Constable Ryan found Leo in his room in the Old Blue Wing, and placed him under arrest, the prisoner protesting his innocence, but as the officer found a bloody knife in the room which has the appearance of being the one with which the stabbing was done, the case is regarded as very strong against the prisoner. Tuesday, District Attorney Clarence F. Lea, Court Reporter Scott and Interpreter de Bernardi came to Sonoma, and for fear that Rigoni might die from his wounds took the injured man's statement, which will be used against the prisoner in case of Rigoni's death.

No formal charges have been made against Leo, as the officers desire to wait and learn the outcome of the injuries. Wednesday, as Rigoni continued to fail, Dr. Jesse was sent for to consult with Dr. Leix, it was found that peritonitis had set in and an operation was necessary. It was during this operation that it was found that Rigoni's gall was cut and that his recovery was impossible. Learning this the county authorities decided that it would be better to remove the prisoner to the county jail, and he was taken to Santa Rosa in an automobile early Thursday morning.

At the time of going to press we learn that Mr. Rigoni is resting easily.

Death of Jas. H. Humphreys

Word was received here Sunday that Mr. James Hughes Humphreys died that morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry Walker, in Oakland. The deceased was well known in this section and had a large number of friends throughout the valley. He was for a number of years railroad station agent at Schellville and was retired about six of seven years ago on account of old age. He stayed in Sonoma for awhile, and then removed to Oakland to make his home with his daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walker, where he remained until his death. He lived for a number of years in Cordelia, Solano County, before he came to Sonoma Valley to reside, and was held in high esteem by the people of that place, a large number of whom came here to pay their last respects to their old friend and neighbor.

Mr. Humphreys was in his 84th year, and leave besides a large circle of friends, seven children to mourn his loss. The children are: Harry Humphreys of Reno; Mrs. F. A. Lewis of Modesto; Mrs. F. Walker of San Jose; Miss Kate Humphreys of Cordelia; Mrs. Harry Walker of Oakland; Frank and Charley Humphreys of Oakland.

The remains were brought to Sonoma Tuesday and the funeral services were held at 11 o'clock a.m. at the M. E. church, Rev. Mr. Rowe preaching a very appropriate sermon. The body was followed to the Mountain cemetery by a large number of friends and relatives. The burial services at the cemetery were under the auspices of Temple Lodge No. 14, F. & A. M. and all that was mortal of their brother was laid beside his wife who passed several years ago.

Wm. J. Bryan in a recent interview speaking of Taft having talked into a phonograph expressed the belief that henceforth the use of the phonograph would be regarded as a dignified way of discussing public questions.

The officers were installed by D. D. C. P. George O. Cobb of Glen Ellen, who went the ritual in splendid style. The two new members who were initiated were J. H. Murray, and Carlos Empanan.

Brother Jackson of California Parlor No. 1, was a visitor to the Sonoma Parlor. After the ceremony an impromptu feed was had in the lodge rooms.

A Charivari Party

GLEN ELLEN, August 1 1908
EDITOR EXPOSITOR:—On the evening of the 28th of July Mrs. Lou Smith and about forty five of her summer guests charivariated Jas. Pieratt. Fish horns, and tin cans, were prominent as musical instruments. After they had made enough noise to frighten the dogs off the ranch, Jim with his usual good nature, invited them in the house. They accepted the invitation and sang songs, danced jigs, swapped stories and chased away dull care for a couple of hours. Jim preached them a sermon, and a widow by the name of Jones fell in love with the speaker, and said she must have him, whether or no. She said that Jim was the first man she ever fell in love with on first sight. The party decided that they would have little fun with J. H. Weise. So they persuaded Jim to join corps No. 9, Mrs. Smith, as captain. The Weise people had gone to bed, but the noise made by the crowd soon brought them out. Mr. Weise said it was the first charivari he ever got, but supposed it was all right providing the noise didn't frighten the cattle too badly. They went to Frank Smith's ranch to charivari him, but the as hour was late it was postponed to another date.

Wants a Divorce

Tuesday suit was begun in the Superior Court by Mrs. Christina Gassner against her husband Jos. Gassner, on the ground of cruelty. The principals in this suit have a home in this valley which consists of a little less than eleven acres, which they recently purchased.

After filing the action for divorce Mrs. Gassner also asked for an order restraining her husband from disposing of the home place, or renting, leasing or encumbering it in any way pending action, which was granted.

Road Bills Allowed

Co. Surveyor Geo H. Winkler and his assistant Thomas McNamara, are preparing a large wall map of the county of Sonoma, to be used by the assessor and other county officials. They will also produce from the same a map one-fourth the dimensions for general use. They have asked the board of supervisors to purchase fifty of these maps for the use of the county officials. The price will be $500. The map will show the latest transfers of property, giving the name of the owner and their acreage.

Santa Rosa Parlor Will Come

At its meeting on Wednesday night Santa Rosa Parlor of Native Sons accepted the invitation of Sonoma Parlor to visit the historic town on the ninth of September and help to make the celebration there a success. The members will visit Sonoma in a body and will take a large crowd of their friends with them.—Press-Democrat.

Resisted Arrest

Constable Ryan was called upon to go to El Verano Tuesday to arrest a man by the name of Christopher Thompson, who was accused by his near neighbors of malicious mischief. The officer was furnished with a warrant which he proceeded to serve. Thompson who evidently expected arrest, upon seeing the officer approach, barricaded himself in his house and defied arrest, and even going so far as to make threats of what he would do if the officer did not leave instantly. Thompson's demands did not quite come up to Constable Ryan's ideas as to the proper way to serve a warrant, and after trying to reason with the fellow, forced an entrance to the house and took his man, who suddenly lost all desire to fight upon sight of a revolver in the officer's hand. The fellow was arrested on complaint of Mr. Murdock, owner of a place near El Verano, who accuses him of placing filth on the fences and in the vicinity of the complainant's residence. The prisoner was brought to Sonoma and taken before Judge Small who placed him under fifty dollar bonds for his appearance for trial, which was set for 2 o'clock this Friday, afternoon.

A Napa Brewery Attached

The plant of the California Brewing Association, established in Napa several years ago and one of the largest lager beer manufacturing concerns on the Pacific Coast, was attached Friday morning by Deputy United States Marshal Towle in a suit filed in the United States Circuit Court by an Eastern firm, which claims some $6000 due for machinery. Two keepers are in charge. Several months ago the James Goodman & Co. Bank of Napa, a creditor of the brewery in a sum said to be about $40,000, took charge of the business. It is believed that the brewing firm will be forced into bankruptcy.

How Nature Provides.

OUR BEAUTY, HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

It is not possible if not probable that elements necessary for the body-health are contained in the native medicinal roots found in the earth, directed to the plant laboratory of nature and made ready for man or animal.

The medicinal virtues of many American plants and roots were known to the early Indians. Thus a root known to modern physicians as Sanicula or Blue Cohosh was known to the Indians as "Squaw root." Another, known to the Indians as "Rattleweed root," is used in modern medicine as "Cimicifuga."

Prof. King's American Dispensary, an authority in these matters, says: "Our Indians set a high value on Rattleweed root (Black Cohosh) in diseases of women. It is surpassed by no other drug in congestive conditions of the parts where there are dragging pains and tenderness."

After many years of study and experiment Dr. Pierce's medicinal director of the Lavall's Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., put up a prescription of his own, containing the non-alcoholic glyceric extracts of the two above mentioned ingredients, together with Golden Seal root, Lady's Slipper root and Unicorn root. Thus, there is no mystery in the make-up of this famous "Prescription." The use of alcohol is entirely avoided in its manufacture, chemically pure glycerine being found to serve the purpose of extracting and preserving the medicinal properties even better than alcohol.

Learn the Truth. The one medicine for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, the ingredients of which are printed on the wrapper of every bottle leaving the great Laboratory in Buffalo, N. Y., where it is made, is called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It Stands Alone not only in respect to its ingredients, but also as the only specific advertised remedy for woman's diseases which absolutely contains no alcohol.

It Stands Alone as the one medicine for the cure of the diseases peculiar to women because the earth supplies the vegetable ingredients.

Mrs. Mary J. Board (Trained Nurse, Washington Hospital, of 1705 9th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I felt badly for four years, had terrible pains at times and was often unable to attend to my duties; appetite was poor and sleep fitful. Tried to cure myself in various ways without success, but finally my attention was called to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I was entirely cured of the old trouble. Am well and can enjoy life once more."

Good temper is largely a matter of health, and good health is largely a matter of healthy activity of the bowels. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are safe, sure and speedy, and once taken do not have to be taken always. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never grip. By all druggists.

Pellets.

BREVITIES

Amoret's Grousseau.

By Martha Cobb Sanford.

Copyright, 1907, by Homer Sprague.

Amoret was very excited. It was her first long journey alone, and vast and entrancing as her dreams were of the delights of California she knew she should find even her dreams transcended.

She took off her stylish little hat and handed it to the "portress," as she mentally dubbed her. Then, with a cushion at her head and another at her feet, she settled back with a sense of complete comfort.

But when the sun, with a last wink of his bright eye, at length disappeared behind the distant trees Amoret turned her attention aimlessly to the people about her. An uninteresting and prosaic section was her unspoken verdict save for a very evidently newly married couple who were too silly to be even amusing.

Amoret opened her purse, in which she was carrying her miniature watch. She glanced at the time and then, frowning, began to investigate the varied contents of her pocketbook. Suddenly she started, then, growing very white, leaned back and closed her eyes.

The "serious and dignified" young man across the aisle had been watching her. He guessed what had happened.

How could he help her? Could he ask her to go to lunch with him?

Of course not. She'd starve before she'd accept. Well, he might as well dine himself and think over the situation while he did so.

As he rose and walked ahead into the dining car Amoret opened her eyes. She stifled the impulse to jump up and follow him. He was the only person in the car that she liked the looks of. He was a thoroughbred from tip to toe. But there must be some other way out of this awful predicament.

She closed her eyes again. All that she could think of was the roll of bills which she had been so long saving for this very trip and which she knew she had that very morning placed in her pocketbook.

When Richard Mason returned from the dining car he found Amoret alone. The rest of the passengers were evidently at dinner. Now was his chance. He had thought up no brilliant lead, to be sure, but the proper words must come if he could get up sufficient nerve to speak. He cleared his throat once, twice, but the silence remained otherwise unbroken.

The train whizzed on. Richard pretended to be reading his paper, but the print might have been Egyptian hieroglyphics. Suddenly he crushed the sheet behind him and turned toward Amoret.

"Great heavens!" he exclaimed and, jumping up, caught her in his arms just as she fell forward fainting. He rang the porter's bell furiously.

"Get some water, quick," he commanded, "and send for the maid! Don't lose a minute!"

"Yes; no, sah," responded the porter and vanished with something akin to the speed and grace of a harry call ambulance.

Meanwhile Richard laid the girl gently down on the seat and got a glass of brandy from his valise. When the porter returned with the water and with the excited maid bringing up the rear Amoret had begun to show signs of consciousness.

"Here, Sarah," ordered Richard (why Sarah he couldn't have told for the life of him), "you take care of her while I go and get some soup. She ought to have gone to dinner sooner, but—but she didn't."

Amoret did not refuse the soup. Indeed, she didn't think to question where it came from. She even allowed Sarah to coax her into eating a little chicken and afterward to superintend the making up of her berth.

"I'll make it all right with you in the morning," Amoret assured her. "You shan't lose!" She stopped short, the whole miserable predicament suddenly flashing over her again. But Sarah had not noticed the interruption.

"Your husband's already done dat, honey."

The curtains were shut tight, and Sarah had gone before Amoret could get up courage to attempt an explanation.

"How is she now?" Inquired Richard anxiously.

"Oh, she's jes' good as new, sah! You'll tak' dese litt' spells mo' calmly when you've been mar'ied mo' continuous lak'!" And, with a friendly smile, Sarah left the young man staring blankly after her.

Here was a situation!

In the morning the porter's "first call to breakfast" rang cheerily through the car. Amoret heard and tried to forget as she went on with her spiritless process of dressing.

Richard heard and realized that he must take the bull by the horns. In other words, he must brace himself to speak to the young lady in distress and offer her assistance.

In the course of half an hour Amoret appeared. She glanced up and down the car, evidently looking for some one. Suddenly seeing Richard, to his utter astonishment she came straight toward him.

"I am Miss Blanchard," she said without a suspicion of coquetry, for this was a purely business transaction. "I am going to take advantage of your kindness to me last night and ask another favor."

"I am pleased to be of the slightest service," responded Richard, with fitting solemnity.

"You see, I—I—" Amoret stopped short in confusion. She had thought it would be so easy.

"Yes, I know all about it," Richard filled in assuringly. "Suppose we go in to breakfast together and talk it over there."

"How do you know all about it?" inquired Amoret in astonishment.

Amoret was very excited. It was her first long journey alone, and vast and entrancing as her dreams were of the delights of California she knew she should find even her dreams transcended.

She took off her stylish little hat and handed it to the "portress," as she mentally dubbed her. Then, with a cushion at her head and another at her feet, she settled back with a sense of complete comfort.

But when the sun, with a last wink of his bright eye, at length disappeared behind the distant trees Amoret turned her attention aimlessly to the people about her. An uninteresting and prosaic section was her unspoken verdict save for a very evidently newly married couple who were too silly to be even amusing.

Amoret opened her purse, in which she was carrying her miniature watch. She glanced at the time and then, frowning, began to investigate the varied contents of her pocketbook. Suddenly she started, then, growing very white, leaned back and closed her eyes.

The "serious and dignified" young man across the aisle had been watching her. He guessed what had happened.

How could he help her? Could he ask her to go to lunch with him?

Of course not. She'd starve before she'd accept. Well, he might as well dine himself and think over the situation while he did so.

As he rose and walked ahead into the dining car Amoret opened her eyes. She stifled the impulse to jump up and follow him. He was the only person in the car that she liked the looks of. He was a thoroughbred from tip to toe. But there must be some other way out of this awful predicament.

She closed her eyes again. All that she could think of was the roll of bills which she had been so long saving for this very trip and which she knew she had that very morning placed in her pocketbook.

When Richard Mason returned from the dining car he found Amoret alone. The rest of the passengers were evidently at dinner. Now was his chance. He had thought up no brilliant lead, to be sure, but the proper words must come if he could get up sufficient nerve to speak. He cleared his throat once, twice, but the silence remained otherwise unbroken.

The train whizzed on. Richard pretended to be reading his paper, but the print might have been Egyptian hieroglyphics. Suddenly he crushed the sheet behind him and turned toward Amoret.

"Great heavens!" he exclaimed and, jumping up, caught her in his arms just as she fell forward fainting. He rang the porter's bell furiously.

"Get some water, quick," he commanded, "and send for the maid! Don't lose a minute!"

"Yes; no, sah," responded the porter and vanished with something akin to the speed and grace of a harry call ambulance.

Meanwhile Richard laid the girl gently down on the seat and got a glass of brandy from his valise. When the porter returned with the water and with the excited maid bringing up the rear Amoret had begun to show signs of consciousness.

"Here, Sarah," ordered Richard (why Sarah he couldn't have told for the life of him), "you take care of her while I go and get some soup. She ought to have gone to dinner sooner, but—but she didn't."

Amoret did not refuse the soup. Indeed, she didn't think to question where it came from. She even allowed Sarah to coax her into eating a little chicken and afterward to superintend the making up of her berth.

"I'll make it all right with you in the morning," Amoret assured her. "You shan't lose!" She stopped short, the whole miserable predicament suddenly flashing over her again. But Sarah had not noticed the interruption.

The curtains were shut tight, and Sarah had gone before Amoret could get up courage to attempt an explanation.

"How is she now?" Inquired Richard anxiously.

"Oh, she's jes' good as new, sah! You'll tak' dese litt' spells mo' calmly when you've been mar'ied mo' continuous lak'!" And, with a friendly smile, Sarah left the young man staring blankly after her.

"To tell you while we're at breakfast. We'll have to go right in. They're sounding the last call."

"Well, if you think"—But that's as far as Amoret got in her hesitation, for Richard had started determinedly ahead, and there was nothing for her to do but to follow—that is, unless she wanted to risk a second fainting spell.

At breakfast Richard launched the brilliant scheme of telegraphing back to her folks for more money. Why, it would reach her before she got to the end of the journey.

There was a complication that Amoret hadn't counted on. Telegraph for more money! Where on earth did he think it would come from?

"Well, you see I live alone with my aunt, who is quite an old lady," she explained, "and it would just worry her to death to get a telegram anyway, let alone a telegram saying that I'd lost my money. She didn't want me to take the journey alone in the first place, and I—"

"Of course we won't telegraph then," broke in Richard brusquely. "You just let me back you till you get to San Diego. By the way, who are your friends there? Maybe I know them."

"Oh, another aunt, sister of the one I live with, and her husband, Mr. Manchester."

"Daniel Manchester, the lawyer?" "Yes. Do you know him?" "Very well, though I've never met his family."

"Isn't that providential?" sighed Amoret. "Then that makes it all right for me to ask a favor of you, doesn't it?" "Yes, of course. At least it was all right anyway. And, say, we'll keep on taking our meals together, won't we? Do say yes."

Amoret lowered her eyes, bit her lip to keep back the laughter that was ready to bubble over and then glanced up at Richard mischievously.

"I suppose I may as well," she admitted, laughing softly. "You see, Sarah thinks"—he knew what Sarah thought, but he was determined she should say the words—"well, Sarah thinks you're my husband!"

"Sarah may be something of a prophetess," Richard ventured and then held his breath, surprised at his own daring.

And that's exactly what Sarah proved to be. For two months later Dick and Amoret were taking their honeymoon trip from San Diego back to Boston.

"Do you know, dear," announced Amoret, "you are exactly what I thought you'd be under similar circumstances the very first night I saw you."

"What do you mean, Amoret? Are you admitting that you loved me at first sight?"

Amoret's little nose tilted up scornfully. "Don't flatter yourself. You may not have noticed, but there were a bride and groom in the car acting perfectly silly. And as I looked at you I thought, that serious and dignified as you were, you'd probably be just as silly if you were married, and you are, Dick. Everybody's watching you."

Richard went off into a spasm of mirth.

"Amoret," he said suddenly, "I've got the greatest idea. You remember that money you lost?" Amoret shrugged her shoulders. Why shouldn't she remember it? "Suppose we send it as a wedding fee to Sarah. She's the one who really married us, you know."

"I can see where I lost it!" quipped Amoret, teasing him.

"Oh, you know what I mean, sweetheart!"

Suddenly she faced him, looking at him in a half frightened, half mischievous way through her blushes.

"I didn't lose the money after all, Dick. I found it the very next day in another part of my pocketbook. It was after we had breakfast together, and I—I didn't tell you. So there was really no reason, you see, for our getting married at all, dearest, except—except that I spent the money on my trousseau."

"Did you ever know," said the hypnotist as he played with a curious, glittering hypnotizing machine of crystal and silver, "did you ever know that hypnotism is practiced among insects?"

"No."

"Well, it is a fact. A queen bee can hypnotize her whole hive whenever she wants to. She makes a curious humming sound, and within a moment or two every bee in the colony falls into a hypnotic trance."

"The death's head hawk moth is also a hypnotist of great power. This creature, indeed, makes its living out of hypnotism. Entering a hive, it makes a sound not unlike the queen bee's note, and the bees immediately sinking into slumber, the moth proceeds to plunder at its leisure."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Turkish Farriery. Turkish ironshoes are simply a flat plate of iron with a hole in the middle. In his volume of "Personal Adventures" Colonel J. P. Robertson describes the extraordinary method of preparing the horse to be shod.

The farrier takes a good long rope, doubles it and knots a loop at the end to about the size of a good large horse collar. This is put over the horse's head after the manner of a horse collar, the knot resting on the horse's chest.

He Was Inscrutable. Underdone—My husband is complaining again of your cooking, Mary. Mary (reassuringly)—Oh, mum, I don't take any notice of him, for 'tis the nature of him to find fault. Ain't he forever complainin' of you, mum?—Illustrated Bits.
